Did you know. Inequality is a root cause of poverty and one of the most damaging inequalities is that between women and men? Globally, women are less likely to make decisions, to own land or property, or to have access to education and employment than men. In the past year at CAFOD we've put more focus on our work with women and girls. In Guatemala, we are working on human rights and violence against women, with workshops and training so that women and girls understand their rights and are more confident in pursuing them.
