Did you know Oscar Romero was Archbishop of San Salvador, the capital of El Salvador. He lived at a time of terrible oppression and violence and was assassinated on 24 March 1980 because his commitment to those living in poverty led him to speak out against injustice. He is remembered for his courage, his faith and his love for the poor, and his teachings inspire our work at CAFOD. CAFOD's head office in London is named Romero House in his honour. May the courage of Oscar Romero inspire us to work with integrity for an end to violence and poverty.
