Did you know .... 2 British MPs have been learning about CAFOD's renewable energy work in Kenya? Mark Hoban and Catherine McKinnell recently visited projects using renewable sources of energy to improve the lives of local people. At a health centre they saw how CAFOD-funded solar panels to refrigerate vaccines have proved more reliable and sustainable than gas. This has meant people are not being turned away because the gas had run out and the vaccines had spoilt. CAFOD's sustainable development works. Thank you for supporting it.
